Labour’s strength is that we are a movement, not just a Party. Our campaigns are made many thousands of times stronger by you adding your voice in support. We want to help you harness your passion and skills so that Labour can win.

Only Labour can beat the Conservative-led Government and stop their unfair agenda of cutting too far and too fast. And we can only do this by you adding your voice and skills to Labour’s campaign.

By training more members of the Party and affiliated Unions to be expert campaigners, and to stand for elected office, we can win back Labour representatives at every level of government and challenge the coalition’s plans.

You can play a crucial role in your local campaign, and build up skills and experiences that translate not only to helping Labour win but also into personal development to help you in your Trade Union work. Labour’s training modules also help members acquire general skills to Chair meetings, get selected to officer positions or as a candidate in elections.

Turn over for more information about Train to Win courses.
What is Train to win?

The Labour Party is offering a range of training modules that any member, activist or role holder can take part in, either as individuals, branches or campaign teams. We are working to provide you with the skills to engage with your members and communities, and to win elections.

How does it work?

We have fifty stand-alone training modules, each covering a specific subject, and nine training courses. Sign up and complete a single module, or a set of modules to pass a recognised Labour Party training course.

Flexibility

Our training modules work flexibly to allow you to just follow a module or two, or to complete a whole training course if you wish to.

Learning exercises

Each module includes training, hands-on exercises, and practical follow up tasks. Participants will be endorsed on each module and build up a personal portfolio by successfully submitting examples of their work, and showing how they have used their new skills.

Example of a Module:

Getting Selected

This module covers the Labour Party’s selection requirements, the process and how it works. The module will help you use the process to show your strengths and will help you address any weaknesses; maximising your chances of selection.

The module is designed for: Any member who is thinking about standing as a Labour candidate for the local council, parliament or other elected body.

The Format is: A training session with group work and examples of good practice, online resources and a follow up task.

Assessment Preliminary task, group work and a follow up activity

It’s useful for: All potential candidates of all levels of experience

To sign up: For this or any module, call 020 7783 1368, or email Tom_Geldard@new.labour.org.uk.

What to do next

If you are interested in more information about Labour’s Training Academy, if you would like to sign up for modules or a full course, or if you would like to arrange for Training Academy sessions to be run for members of your Trade Union, please call Tom Geldard 020 7783 1368, or email Tom_Geldard@new.labour.org.uk.